Immigrants are the single most attractive growth segment for U.S. lenders. Between 2015 and 2065, new-to-country consumers are projected to account for 88% of the U.S. population increase, or 103 million people. Moreover, the average newcomer applies for 5 financial products in their first 2 years in the United States. These immigrants are highly creditworthy, with low defaults and high stickiness.

What's included in a Nova credit report?

- ✓ U.S. equivalent credit score
- ✓ Aggregate risk attributes
- ✓ Tradelines & repayment history
- ✓ Additional data such as bureau notices, inquiry & employment history etc.

These credit reports represent familiar data that is post-processed to be compliant with U.S. regulation as well as standardized across countries. Effectively, the Nova Credit Passport™ is a single credit report format, recognizable by all risk, operations and compliance teams at financial institutions.
